Godsong is a very accessible translation of the Bhavagad-Gita. But--my making it more accesible, I think it loses a bit of its power. One line that really stands out for me, however is Majmudar saying that atheism/agnosticism was basically just like a work of art that just really didn't resonate with him.

The hymn came into English as early as ten years after Luther composed it, but the version most of us sing today was translated by Frederick Hedge more than 300 years later, in 1853. It is by no means a literal translation of the original, understandably taking certain licenses for the sake of meter and rhyme.
